covering the 24 hours to 08:00 on Wednesday 23rd December and any anticipated service issues

The following update was issued by Royal Mail Customer Service at 09:30 on Wednesday 23rd December.

Deliveries will be attempted today as normal in most areas. In areas of the UK most affected by the adverse weather, especially the more rural parts of Scotland, Cumbria and the North of England, deliveries are likely to be affected today. We will be doing all we can to maintain as normal a service as possible for the remaining days before Christmas, where it is safe for our people to do so.
